

In our rapidly evolving world, the practice of medicine is undergoing profound transformations, driven by advancements in technology, scientific discovery, and changing patient needs. As aspiring professionals in the field, it is essential for us to grasp the intricacies of these changes and understand how they shape the landscape of healthcare delivery. Come and be a part of an enlightening seminar aimed at sparking your curiosity and broadening your perspectives! Engage in captivating discussions with professors from the NUS Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, each excelling in their own fields. This is your chance to enhance your academic voyage! Remember to save the date and grasp the opportunity to delve into a transformative learning encounter with the esteemed NUS Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine!

REGISTER NOW

Click here to Register: <https://p.baominggongju.com/share?eid=661c7a398e3acef1b1c7b215&referer=odVL41l13dDZlHDmVU4Eb4X4-5jE>

Speakers

Topics

Associate Professor Kevin Tan,
Vice-Dean
(Graduate Studies)

Overview of PhD and MSc programmes in NUS Medicine

Associate Professor Zhang Yongliang,
Co-Programme Director

MSc-Applied Biomedicine

Professor Nick Sevdalis,
Programme Director

MSc-Behavioural and Implementation Sciences in Health

Associate Professor Ngiam Kee Yuan,
Programme Director

MSc-Biomedical Informatics

Associate Professor Caroline Lee,
Programme Director

MSc-Precision Health and Medicine